

case study

catherinecantey.com

RESIDENTIAL & COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

From Vision to Livable Reality

Context

Over many years, Catherine has designed, renovated, built, and developed more than 20 residential and community-based projects. This work includes individual homes, multi-property renovations, land development, and the revitalization of an entire city block—often within historically sensitive environments requiring regulatory and stakeholder coordination.

Objectives

- Transform underutilized or aging properties into functional, livable spaces
- Balance vision, budget, and long-term use
- Develop land and structures appropriate to community and context
- Preserve historic character while meeting modern needs

Approach

Catherine approaches each project with a builder's and strategist's mindset—remaining engaged from concept through execution. Her work integrates design, construction, and decision-making throughout the lifecycle, sequencing tradeoffs and navigating constraints to ensure vision becomes durable, livable form.

Results

- Designed, renovated, or built 20+ residential properties
- Developed tracts of land for appropriate residential or mixed-use use
- Renovated all properties within a single city block
- Worked directly with historic committees and regulatory bodies
- Delivered cohesive, durable spaces that hold value over time

Impact

This portfolio reflects a consistent pattern of clarity in complexity, respect for context, and disciplined execution. Across private, public, and historic settings, Catherine brings vision into form while earning trust with stakeholders and communities.

Next Steps

If you are navigating a renovation, development, or community project and need clarity to move from vision to responsible execution, connect with Catherine to learn more.

Catherine@CatherineCantey.com

